Angelic Pirates Pillage Comic Fandom

San Diego, California – Angelic Entertainment launched its first public promotion for the forthcoming Pirates of Venus motion picture to record breaking attendees of Comic Con International from July 20-23, 2006. Angelic distributed promotional items and talked up their project based on the books of Edgar Rice Burroughs, to a very enthusiastic crowd, estimated to exceed 110,000 people.

Mr. Mark Maine, Chairman & CEO of Angelic spent the convention getting the word out on the Pirates of Venus project and meeting with many veteran industry professionals. Other Angelic Staff members met with artists, producers and throngs of costume clad fans of popular culture. Fans and professionals received collector buttons and custom T-Shirts displaying the projects concept art & title, while early character sketches were also available for viewing.

“Comic Con is an amazing event. With all the professionals and fans roaming everywhere I couldn’t think of a better place to start introducing Pirates of Venus to the Public.” Stated Maine, “The reaction from the crowd and the industry folks that I’ve met with is very encouraging as we work to bring this best selling series of Edgar Rice Burroughs’s books to the big screen.”

Although this was Angelic Entertainment’s first foray into Comic Con International, the massive comic book and popular arts convention also had presentations from Universal, Warner Brothers, Fox and New Line Cinema in addition to other major film players. Over its 35 year history the convention has grown from a few hundred comic book collectors to become the largest nexus of popular arts, videogame, merchandising and film industry enthusiasts on the planet.

“The attendees of Comic Con are the demographic we’re aiming at with Pirates of Venus. The fans here are what will make or kill a project. If they approve then you have a highly anticipated product, if they disapprove you’d best rethink what you’re working on.” Said Maine. “Pirates of Venus has had an overwhelming positive reaction from people we’ve talked with. Pirates is defiantly on the right course to box-office success.”
